Fall in love with classical music Arizona Musicfest Young Artists Concert

Every fall, Arizona Musicfest presents the Dil & Louise Dilatush Young Artists Concert saluting the Valley's finest young classical artists. Soloists, ensembles and vocalists create an inspiring concert experience that is especially rewarding for audience members of all ages.

"Bring something to tie yourself to your seat," suggested event chairperson Irene O'Hare, "because, no matter what age you are, this concert is going to blow you away!"

Performing at this year's concert: the Passerelle String Quartet (Jeanelle Brierley, violin; Eric Chang, violin; Kevin Bodhipaksha, viola; Ted Lin, cello); Austen Yueh, clarinet; Paris Myers, bass; Peter Eom, cello; Stephanie Kha, piano; HaeSoo Cheon, violin; Maria Viteri, voice; and Chris Puglisi, voice. The program begins at 2 p.m. on Sunday, November 7, at Desert Foothills Lutheran Church.

"These highly-regarded young musicians are astonishing. The virtuosity and emotional maturity of their performances are what you'd expect from adults," said O'Hare. The program includes works by Shostakovich, Saint-Saens, Dragonetti, Schumann, Chopin, Bach, Scarlatti, Falconieri, and Althouse.

"In order to fall in love with classical music, children need to be engaged in it," commented O'Hare. "When they go to a concert like this, where they can witness the music being made by students who may not be much older than they are, it has a tremendous impact on them."

Young Artists Concert student tickets are free for children 18 and under. Adult tickets are $10, available at the door. There is a Meet the Artists reception following the concert. Desert Foothills Lutheran Church is located at 29305 Scottsdale Road, Scottsdale, AZ 85262 (between Dixileta & Dynamite).
